Novelty (N)	Claims	3, 4, 6-10, 13, 14, 16-19	YES
	Claims	1, 2, 5, 11, 12, 15	NO
Inventive step (IS)	Claims	8-10, 18, 19	YES
	Claims	1-7, 11-17	NO
Industrial applicability (IA)	Claims	1-19	YES
	Claims	None	NO

2. Citations and explanations (Rule 70.7)

D : JP2001-350431(2001.12.21)

1. Novelty

The provided pixel of Claims 1 and 2 comprises of a diode, a capacitor, and a light-emitting device. Here the light-emitting device is an EL element or a LED (which has a diode-like character). In this pixel structure, there is no transistor usually used for selecting a pixel. The pixel structure and the operations of each components explained in claims 1 and 2 are the same as those found in Fig.1 of D.

Claim 5 is the same as Claim 2 except the reversed polarity, and this is the same as found in Fig.5 of D.

Claims 11, 12, and 15 don't have any other technical concept and they are similar to Claims 1, 2, and 5 respectively.

So, Claims 1, 2, 5, 11, 12, 15 cannot be regarded as meeting the requirement of novelty (Art.33(2) PCT).

2. Inventive Step

Claims 1-4 refer to a pixel structure and its driving method, in which the light-emitting element has the characteristics of a diode. The driving methods of the claimed invention are very similar to those found in D as explained below.

In addressing period, the diode is on, and the light-emitting device is off, meanwhile the capacitor is charged by the data signal.

In light-emitting period, the diode is off, and the light-emitting device is on, meanwhile the stored charge flows through the light-emitting device.

These operations rely on the characteristics of the light-emitting device, a diode-like character, and on the characteristics of a capacitor, a resistance to abrupt voltage change.

The same principles and driving pulses are used in D, for instance, in Fig.1 and Fig.2.

Claims 5-7 are the same as claims 2-4 except the reversed polarity, and these are the same as found in Fig.5 and Fig.6 of D.

Claims 11-17 are related to Claims 1-7 respectively, without any other technical concept.

Therefore, Claims 1-7 and 11-17 cannot be regarded as meeting the requirement of inventive step (Art.33(3) PCT).

3. Industrial Applicability

The whole Claims are concerning the matrix-type display using EL or LED. So, this application can be regarded as meeting the requirement of industrial applicability (Art 33(4) PCT).
